

Our Photo Event Fall 2022   Tollkeepers Cottage

Linus Is like one of our volunteers, making himself at home at the Tollkeeper's Cottage. His best skill? Supervising his mom, Catherine Watts, as she works in the garden.

Here Catherine Watts captured Linus surveying the yard, looking earnestly to where the Tollkeeper's Cottage used to stand many years ago.

Jeannette Mazzocato likes reflections and an abstract look. Can you guess where this was taken?

Jeannette calls this her Tribute to Canadian artist Charlie Pachter.

Ed O'Connor was fascinated by the door of our Cottage because of its texture and lines. He is an avid bird and insect observer and posts pictures from his trips in a blog called "Words and Wings." <https://edwardoconnor.ca>

Marianne Imrie says that her little one is “Exploring History”.

Beautiful Racer is being trained under Dog Guides to help someone who is visually or auditorily challenged. Right now he enjoys relaxing on the porch and showing off how obedient he is! Thanks to Maggie Groves.

Another great shot of Racer from Maggie Groves.

Marilyn Spearin called this “Elderly bug hobbles away from the Tollkeeper’s Cottage”.

Susan Cody saw the significance of the beautiful birch trees, planted many years ago by Jane Beecroft with Elder Carolyn King of the Mississaugas of the Credit. Birch trees are the sacred tree of the Mississaugas who lived in this area.
